The Christian's Divorce Suit.

Yesterday afternoon the taking of testimony in the case of ex-Senator Christiany against his wife, Lillie M. Christiany, for divorce was resumed before Examiner H. F. Lovejoy. The only witness called and examined was Mr. Samuel Regeater, of Baltimore, and the object of his testimony was to contradict that of the hackman Bland. It was the latter that carried the lady in his carriage on the Christmas afternoon of 1879 to the St. James Hotel, taking her from a house on Indiana avenue, according to his testimony, and returning her to the same place about an hour later. Subsequently, at Sanderson's Hotel, it was alleged that he made a statement, under oath, to the effect that he was mistaken in the identity of the person, and described an entirely different looking person from Mrs. Christiany as the one he took to the hotel. On his examination he denied that he had ever made such a statement.

Mr. Regeater testified that he was present at Sanderson's Hotel when Bland came there in company with a man named McLaughlin. An oath was administered to him, and the statement that he made was written down and signed by Bland. He described the woman that he carried to the hotel as being taller than Mrs. Christiany, larger in size and so contrasting in figure as to be easily recognized as a different person. The driver, Bland, made his statement freely and willingly, and at that time, was positive of it being correct.

On cross-examination the witness, in response to questions, stated that he had been intimate with Mrs. Christiany's family for years, and that he had visited Mr. Oliver's office, because, having read published reports of the case, he wished to know what progress was being made and the nature of the developments.

THE CASE TO-DAY.

To-day, in the Equity Court, argument was had by counsel relative to the admission or rejection of certain questions arising during the testimony adduced before the examiner. The main question was in favor of the counsel for complainant, was that where a certain instrument of writing was presented, no outside testimony explanatory thereof was admissible. The question arose before the examiner on a paper alleged to have been signed by Bland, the hackman.

The other motion was that the defendant be limited as to time in taking her testimony, and the Court granted the motion and fixed the limit within sixty days.

The Baby at Snell's Bar.

Babies are handy sometimes and nice little things to have about the house, but when a six-months-old youngster, with a strong pair of lungs, makes its debut in a police court, it is certain to demand respect and create a sensation.

Mary Davis, a strapping girl, negress, was arraigned in the Police Court to-day for profanity. She carried a baby in her arms, and when called up for trial, demanded the privilege of making an explanation before pleading. She was granted the privilege.

"You see, sah," she began, "de trouble am jest dis. Dis lyar baby o' mine kept me wake all last night an' cryin', and de more I tried fur to quiet him de louder he howled. I takes him up finally, juden, and walks down de alley wid him, hopin' dat would do some good, but Lord bress yer, he yelled louder den ever."

"Ah-ah-wah-wah!" shouted Mary's baby at this juncture to the consternation of the court officials and amusement of the spectators.

"Ah-hoo-wah-wah-ah-ah!" roared the youngster again and the bailiff and clerks all made a simultaneous dash to take him from his mother and remove him from the court.

"Ah-whoo-ah-wah-ah-wah-ah-wah!" the infant continued to bellow, and a scene of the utmost confusion followed.

"I say my good woman," his Honor inquired, "does dat baby always cry so?"

"Awah-ah-wah-ah!" screamed the kid, as though answering for his mother.

"Isay, answer my question!" roared the Court.

"Awah-ah-wah-ah!" the baby responded, and matters began to get lively when the Court, in self-defense, discharged the woman, who, with her noisy little one, hurried from the court-room.

The Court wiped his perspiring brow, drew up his face into a hard knot, and, to get even, raised the next victim, a lame, cross-eyed tramp, 810 for falling asleep on a bench in a public park.

The Sculling Match.

All the arrangements for the sculling match, which is to take place to-morrow evening on the Eastern Branch, have been completed, and promptly at 7 o'clock the shells will start. The race, as before stated in THE CRITIC, will be on the Navy-yard bridge to the railroad bridge and return, a distance of about one mile. The following entries have been made: Mansfield and Lewis, Nichols and Smith, Smith and Posy, Wm. H. Shelton and Edward Macca. In addition to the names above mentioned, it is understood that two or three more entries will be made to-day. A meeting of the contestants will be held this evening at Harvey Clark's restaurant, foot of Eleventh street southeast for the purpose of signing articles of agreement.

Mr. James M. Leitch has been selected as stakeholder, with Joseph Brown referee, and Messrs. Frank P. Morgan and Bernard McDonnell judges for Mansfield and Lewis, Daniel Curry and James Leitch for Nichols and Smith, and Geo. O'Neil and Geo. Burgess for Smith and Posy. Messrs. Shelton and Macca have not chosen their's as yet.

The Place Where

all can be suited is the most desired, and such a place is Noah Walker & Co., clock-makers, 625 Pennsylvania avenue. Their stock, comprising men and boy's clothing, is superb and every one going there can't help being suited.

THE MUSKET KICKS.

How Room 50 Experienced a Rebound from Congressman Money.

The determined features, mounted on the wiry frame, of Hon. Hernando D. Money, of Mississippi, have been seen in Washington for the past few days. He was attracted to this fashionable summer resort by a small paragraph in the New York Times, where some person supposed to be implicated in Star-route cases, was alluded to as a warm personal friend of Congressman Money. As Col. Money has been for some time Chairman of the House Committee on Post-offices and Post-roads, the article would have a tendency, clearly meant, to connect the Colonel's influence with whatever crookedness in this connection was claimed.

Yesterday the Colonel adorned himself with a proper amount of wasp and proceeded to Room 50, which he was referred to as the most likely place to find Mr. Root, the correspondent of the Times, whose article had written the offensive words. He found the Star Chamber in high session. In one part of the room were Gibson and Wood, seated at a desk in another quarter of the den, with a pile of United States records and a lot of manuscript as an assistant, sat Mr. Root. This fact will effectually dispose of Billy Cook's statement to the effect that the prosecution was not furnishing the press with information. It is bald, unvarnished lie.

The Colonel, perhaps a trifle excited, approached Mr. Root and asked if he was the author of the article. He answered that he was, and that he meant no reflection on the Colonel's character by it. This was not satisfactory. "That won't do, young man!" said the Colonel. "If you didn't mean to convey any inference by that language, what was your purpose in using it? You are evidently a novice in Washington journalism, or you would have known that during my whole career in Congress I have done all in my power to curtail the expenditures on these expedited routes, and in several reports have pointed out what I called their gross extravagance. Why, the very case with which you connect my name was taken bodily from a speech I made, showing the reckless waste of money. Can't you read? What kind of a trial are you fellows supposed to be carrying on? You're a slanderer and defamer. Now I propose to give you just about three days to correct that impression in your paper. If you don't do it within the specified time, I'll make it personally uncomfortable for you. That's all I've got to say to you."

Then, turning to the other eminent prosecutors, he said: "As for this whole crowd, I've only to say that when you find any evidence that connects me dishonestly with any public or private funds, and most of it. But my character is my only stock in trade, and I serve notice on you now that if you attempt to snitch it by innuendo and soil it by underground and cowardly insinuations, I'll hold you to a personal account. You'll probably find out what the reputation of an American citizen is not to be killed by a snuff-machine."

Charged With a Heinous Offense.

When the case of John F. Mitchell, a colored man and ex-policeman, indicted for rape on his own daughter, Ella E. Mitchell, was reached in the Criminal Court to-day, objection was made to the immediate trial by counsel for defense on the ground that a trial had been in a case presided upon them, but the court ordered it to proceed. District Attorney Corbitt and his assistant, Mr. Perry, appeared for the prosecution, and Messrs. W. P. Williams and William L. Smith for defense. After an attempt to impanel a jury without success, the case was postponed until Thursday next.

The Place of Attraction

now for boys, is 909 Pennsylvania avenue, the Boys' Clothing House of E. Robinson & Co., where every one is suited in suit and body. They like the attention bestowed upon them by the proprietors and salesmen, and every boy goes away pleased.

The Police and Petty Larcenies.

Major Brock, Chief of Police, states that the police force should not be held responsible for the majority of petty larcenies that are reported. The beats of his officers are large, and it is an easy matter for a sneak thief to operate in one section of the beat while the officer is at the other. He thinks that at least one hundred and fifty more men should be added to the force to remedy this evil.

Sudden Death.

The coroner was notified this afternoon of the sudden death of a young man living on M street, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth streets, who, it is reported, died from the effects of over-exertion during the hottest part of to-day.

The statement which appeared in the morning papers to-day, and in our evening contemporary yesterday, that the market people at Seventh and O streets have had their time extended to August 1, was premature, as a petition for such extension of time was filed, but promptly refused by the Commissioners this morning.

The Commissioners to-day replied to the communication of L. E. Gannon, Esq., received on the 10th of May, asking compensation for injuries received by the breaking of the axle of his buggy while he was driving over a man-trap at L street and Vermont avenue, that the Commissioners have no authority to pay his claim, and no funds for the purpose.

The Case of "Exodus" Perry.

In the Supreme Court in general term this morning, the appeal case of Samuel L. Perry, the negro who, as our readers may recollect, was the principal agent in inducing the negroes of St. Louis to emigrate to Indiana prior to the late Presidential election, was called up for a hearing. The facts are these: The Governor of North Carolina made a requisition upon the proper authorities of the District for the rendition of Samuel L. Perry, a negro indicted in North Carolina for the crime of forgery. The accused was surrendered upon the requisition, but before his removal by the agent of the State, a habeas corpus was served out before Judge Wylie, who discharged him. Thereupon Mr. R. T. Merrick, counsel for the State of North Carolina, brought the case to the Supreme Court, and the case was set for a term on appeal from Judge Wylie's decision. Mr. R. T. Merrick for the State and Mr. R. S. Davis contra; argument in progress.

A Gallant Scram Race.

Brightwood, Wednesday afternoon, was the scene of a large gathering, which, if it was not exactly a recherche, was altogether and utterly lively. The occasion was a race between Sam Beninger's roan horse and the bay horse of Patsey Sullivan, of the Island. There has been much dispute as to the respective speed of these two animals, and the dispute was ended by a wager of $50, side mile heats, best two in three. Sullivan's animal won in 3:17, and Pat feels himself to be a king bee.

The Sanitary Department of the Police.

Headquarters was startled to-day by a telephone dispatch to the effect that a well-dressed gentleman was dying in a drug store, near Thirteenth and F streets. The entire force turned out with the rapidity incidental to that portion of our city government, but by the time they had arrived the "well-dressed" gentleman had sufficiently recovered to lob up serenely and expuliate homeward. His name was —, but we won't mention his name.

Marine Collision Investigated.

The local steamboat inspectors have rendered the following decision to Inspector-General Dumont in the case of collision between vessels in their district:

In the case of the collision between the steamer Lady of the Lake and the schooner W. H. Smith, which took place on June 9, in the Chesapeake, near Windmill Point, we find that the collision was the result of carelessness and neglect of duty on the part of John F. Posey, pilot in charge of the said steamer, in ascending himself from and leaving the pilot-house in the care of the quartermaster (an unlicensed man). We have therefore revoked the license of said John F. Posey for gross negligence of duty.

A TELEGRAM has been received from Leadville announcing the killing in that city of William Kloman, of Washington; Kloman, at present in the Alexandria jail on account of three-card monte, attempted, in company with Alphonzo Arrington and Hugh Strider, burglars, to break jail. They were well armed with instruments, but the officers of the jail discovered them. They had been suspected for several days and were under surveillance. When pounced upon they had half-sawn one of the iron bars in the "debtor's room," in the upper portion of the jail. They were immediately removed to cells on the first floor where escape is impossible. The tools consisted of small saws, bits, &c., which had been smuggled in by sympathetic friends.
